

ENVIRONMENTAL INFORMATION MANAGEMENT SERVICES

Today's surface water and groundwater management efforts generate high volumes of environmental monitoring and characterization data. Matrix Solutions Inc. can help you understand your data management needs and help you implement an environmental data management system to reduce costs, enhance data quality and enable better informed environmental business decisions.

Management Consulting and Implementation Planning

Matrix can work with your organization to fully understand its data needs. We can develop an Implementation Plan that will enable your organization to enjoy all of the benefits of an environmental data management system.

Field Data Collection Automation

A data management system provides many opportunities to automate field data collection activities. Automation reduces costs, increases responsiveness, and most importantly, maximizes the quality of your data.

Laboratory Data

Laboratories provide most of the data needed by your organization for decision-making and reporting activities. We will work with your laboratories to ensure that they can provide you with compatible electronic laboratory deliverables (EDDs).

Automated Reporting

Automating your regulatory and ad-hoc reporting requirements will greatly reduce recurring reporting costs and enable you to make timely decisions based on your data.

Software Customization and System Integration

For most organizations, environmental monitoring data is one of several sources of data needed to support environmental management. We can customize your environmental data management system to provide seamless integration with other corporate resources.

Hosting

We can provide a secure and accessible off-site hosted solution for our clients; thus, reducing much of the effort needed to install and support a large software system.

Training

Matrix will work with you to develop and implement a comprehensive training program that enables your team to take full advantage of the benefits of an environmental data management system.
